MESSAGE FROM THE RECTOR

It is an honor and a privilege to introduce this latest publication celebrating the extraordinary achievements of our students while also reflecting their dedication, passion, and resilience in a wide range of fields.

As Rector, I take special pride in the success of our students. I also note with appreciation that those who study at Forman are not simply scholars, rather they are also emerging innovators and leaders, contributing to research that provides valuable insights across disciplines. In addition, they thrive in a variety of co-curricular activities, showcasing their remarkable talents in arts, sports, culture, and other fields.

Some students participate in international exchange programs, broadening not only their horizons but also those of our university as they acquire international experience and develop a deeper appreciation for global perspectives. Building on their Forman education, our students also earn scholarships for postgraduate study at esteemed institutions around the world.

Other students secure prestigious internships with leading companies within Pakistan, gaining valuable hands-on experience that helps prepare them for rewarding professional careers. Without doubt, their involvement in student societies adds to the vibrancy of campus life while also providing opportunities for leadership and service.

As you read these success stories, I hope that you too are inspired by our students and the incredible journeys that they have embarked upon. While taking pride in their achievements, we also want to acknowledge the hard work that lies behind their success as well as the support from others received along the way including parents, families, teachers, mentors, and fellow students. Finally, we are proud that Forman has played a part in the journey of each of these students, providing a platform and foundation for their subsequent success.

Let me conclude this message with a final word to our students: Your achievements are a tribute to your strength and determination. You also serve as torchbearers for the future, even as you add to the legacy that makes Forman special. Indeed, we view your success as our greatest reward. Looking ahead, we will follow your journey with interest as you continue to strive for excellence, embrace challenges, and make a positive difference in the world. After all, "Once a Formanite, Always a Formanite"!

Dr. Jonathan S. Addleton

MESSAGE FROM THE CHIEF MARKETING & OUTREACH OFFICER

It is with joy that I welcome you to this publication, sharing the remarkable success stories of our students. At Forman Christian College (A Chartered University) we always try to encourage and unlock the boundless potential that we know lies within our students. This compilation is not just a tribute to the achievements of our young minds but is also a reflection of the vibrant, dynamic spirit that defines Forman.

The untainted, innovative ideas and fresh perspectives are what set our students apart from others and propel FCCU to new heights. For me, it is also important that we understand that success does not necessarily have to be huge. At this young age, even the smallest of successes mean the most, and like spring flowers in full bloom, they bring hope, and inspiration to everyone around them – parents, faculty, and the society at large.

Each story within these pages is an evidence to the power of youth, creativity, and determination. These young minds, unburdened by the constraints of experience, dream big and push boundaries, reminding us all of the incredible impact that fresh ideas can have. Their achievements are an example of what is possible when passion meets opportunity!

I feel privileged to say that the success of our students is not only shaping their futures but also enhancing FCCU's image in the global arena. Our students' success is a reflection of our mission to nurture responsible citizens who lead, serve, and contribute meaningfully to society.

Flipping through the pages of this booklet, I hope you feel the same sense of pride and optimism that we do. Thank you for being a part of this journey and for celebrating the incredible achievements of our students. Together, we continue to move forward, ever upward, guided by the light of our young scholars' successes.

WES celebrated Breast Cancer Awareness Month in October and Women's Day Month in March, hosting seminars, talks, and informational stalls. Mahrukh expressed gratitude to FCCU for the opportunity and encouraged new presidents, reminding them that it's okay to make mistakes as they begin their journey.

MS. MANEEZA
NOREEN

President of Speers
Chemical Society

Maneeza says that being President was as much about personal growth and connections as it was about the role itself. Initially shy and introverted, the position boosted her confidence and enhanced her management and leadership skills through handling various tasks, leading a society, and working closely with her team. She aimed to show FCCU students that Chemistry could be engaging by organizing interactive workshops, including those on perfumery, scented candles, and moisturizers.

MR. MOHAMMAD
IMAD TAHIR

President of International Affairs
Society

As President of TEDxFCCU and the International Affairs Society (IAS), Imad organized inspiring talks, workshops, networking events, guest lectures, and panel discussions on global politics. These activities offered students a platform to engage with thought leaders and experts from various fields, fostering an environment of intellectual exchange and debate. This role enhanced his organizational, leadership, and communication skills while providing students with a global perspective and a deeper understanding of international issues.

MR. MUHAMMAD
HASEEB AKHTAR

Debating Society

Usama Zulfiqar led the oldest debating society in Asia, organizing major events like the Forman Lahore Debate Open and APFDC. His goal was to promote peace, positivity, and growth, and he is proud of the efforts to make the society the best and most successful version of itself.

FORMAN WRITERS

MS. AYESHA
JILLANI
Majors in Psychology

Ayesha has participated and presented her research paper titled 'Capitalist Metaphors in Parasite' in the Undergraduate Forum at the 54th Annual North-east Modern Language Association hosted by the University at Buffalo in Niagara Falls, New York. Her paper delved into how the metaphorical symbols in Bong Joon-ho's Oscar-winning film Parasite (2019) were used to represent the class divide.

MS. NOOR
SHAHID
Majors in Biotechnology

Noor has published her research paper in the International Journal of Food Properties (Impact Factor 2.90, Q1 Cite Score Best Quartile, HEC Recognized W Category Journal). This research highlighted the effects of germination on the phytochemical and antioxidant properties of black chickpeas in response to increment in germination time. It concluded that extended germination for 120 hours can negatively influence the phytochemical and antioxidant profile of black chickpeas; however, optimum germination for 72 hours was found promising in positively enhancing the bioactive traits of black chickpeas in comparison to non-germinated black chickpeas.

MS. PARIYA
Majors in Political Science

Pariya works for the advocacy of human rights and writes articles. She also channeled her experiences and insights into meaningful articles for the Albion Human Rights Lab.

STUDENTS DISCOVERIES

MR. FASEEH AHMED
Majors in Environmental Sciences

Faseeh Ahmed got selected for Supporting Preparedness for Article 6 Cooperation (SPAR6C) Research Mentorship Program (RMP). SPAR6C is the largest and more comprehensive program of Article 6 of the Paris agreement to foster development of the carbon market. He did his research, followed by an internship under this program.

MS. HADIYA
Majors in Food Safety &
Quality Management

Hadiya provided a strategic solution to reduce losses in the supply chain of fresh tomatoes in Pakistan. Her research entailed different surveys that led her to identify the root causes of this problem. She concluded that the plastic packaging along with pre-cooled tomatoes kept under refrigeration, indicated the best physicochemical attributes and extended shelf life. By implementing the proposed strategic measures, the agriculture sector can mitigate challenges, optimize resource utilization, and contribute to the economic growth of the country.

MS. JAWARIA AMIN
Majors in Food Safety &
Quality Management

Jawaria, along with her co-inventor, has invented a smart edible paper that changes its color in response to a change in pH and multiple heating episodes of food products, indicating the product safety status. Furthermore, this smart edible paper can indicate the shelf life of the food product as well. The paper is biodegradable and leaves no pollution signature when disposed after use. Jawaria and her co-inventor have invested a whole year to crack the code to master this craft. This technology is under consideration for a patent.

MS. JAWARIA ZAFAR

Majors in Food Safety &
Quality Management

Jawaria developed prebiotic-enriched jellies to boost gut microbiota. She investigated the physiochemical properties and prebiotic activity score of obtained oligosaccharides for the production of prebiotic-enriched jellies. She proved that oligosaccharides from citrus peels hold significant prebiotic effect and the prebiotic activity score for Bifidobacterium was higher than L. reuteri and both probiotic bacteria support the growth of each other. The citrus peel prebiotic limits the growth of E. coli while the growth of E. coli is retarded by the co-culture microbial system. Her findings support the production of synbiotic foods for gut microbiome modulation.
